

Fashion feud hits Met Gala

Page Six

Ian Mohr
imohr@nypost.com

Oli Coleman
ocoleman@nypost.com
Mara Siegler
msiegler@nypost.com
Carlos Greer
cgreer@nypost.com
Tashara Jones
tjones@nypost.com

Turn the tables

LENOX Hill Neighborhood House's spring gala had guests oohing and aahing over intricate tablescapes featuring inventive centerpieces (as well as tablecloths, napkins and gifts) at Cipriani 42nd Street. One centerpiece included an armored knight, while another had sky-high feathers and towering florals. Interior designer Harry Heissmann, one of the chairs of the event, did a "Some Like It Hot"-themed table that even had a mannequin with a costume from the Broadway show and Playbills. The tables for the event take a lot of setup, but "it's a great energy," Heissmann told us. "You have camaraderie and people help out each other," with folks trading steamers, ladders and irons.

Model matriarch

BROOKE Shields' youngest daughter, Grier Henchy (above), admitted that watching her mom's recent documentary "Pretty Baby: Brooke Shields" was "a lot to take in." "I got a little bit freaked out because I didn't know as much as I thought I knew," she recently told Page Six. "It was shocking, but again I'm super-proud." Henchy, 17, added at a Manhattan screening that she finds it "amazing" that her super-model mom is so down to earth and normal.

CELINE creative director Hedi Slimane seems to still be holding a grudge against Vogue's most powerful editor, Anna Wintour. Eagle-eyed Met Gala watchers noted that French brand Celine was not at the famed Super Bowl of fashion last Monday night at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The night's honoree, the late designer Karl Lagerfeld, was such a fan of Slimane that he famously lost 92 pounds to fit into the suits the designer was making for Dior Homme. In a Twitter discussion about who was and was not on the red carpet, European It girl Camille Charrière seemed to confirm the bad blood. Charrière's wedding to film producer François Larpin was covered by the fashion bible in December 2021, but left out the fact that Slimane made her wedding dress. Chiming in on one social media user alleging that "Celine is banned" by Vogue, influencer Charrière responded, "Not banned," but she "wasn't allowed" by Slimane to "give my registry pics to Vogue." "It's a choice Hedi made because he's against the globalization of culture," she said. The alleged grudge has been going on for a while between Wintour and the former creative director for Saint Laurent. WWD reported that Vogue's Runway section was not invited to cover Celine's spring 2022 virtual show. According to the fashion publication, Slimane was upset when Condé Nast fired the top editors at Vogue's international editions — including his bestie, former Vogue Paris Editor-in-Chief Emmanuelle Alt. Sources told the pub, "Slimane has expressed his frustration to Vogue global director and Condé Nast chief content officer Anna Wintour and hit the brakes on some advertising with the Vogue brand." A source close to the magazine told Page Six, "It is Hedi's decision not to work with Vogue," and they have "nothing but respect and admiration for him and look forward to covering Celine in the future."

Preggers Rihanna goes "bump in the night" Friday in a turn-my-baring fur 'n' leather outfit at Cipriani Soho for billionaire Alexandre Arnault's birthday party.

Who's top Gunn?

DC Studios co-CEO James Gunn — who previously directed the Marvel film series "Guardians of the Galaxy" — thinks the competition between comic-book movie behemoths Marvel and DC is a "fun rivalry." "I want there to be good Marvel movies so that DC can survive," he told Page Six at a Cinema Society screening of "Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3" of the Chris Pratt-fronted franchise. "I want people to come to the theater because we're making good DC movies and good Marvel movies. I don't see [Marvel honcho] Kevin Feige and I being rivals. We're friends and we have the same goal, which is to keep people coming back and experiencing movies in theaters."

Italian hospitality

SOUTHAMPTON'S Capri is turning up the heat this summer. The hotel hired a new chef, Andrew Molen, and the poolside menu will include local fish and heart-shaped pizzas. Owner Michael Pitsinos has also added pickleball, table tennis and fire pits for ya. The spot, which has appeared on the Bravo series "Summer House" and is known for its pool parties, will be bringing in DJs again this summer, natch.

Vamos a Miami

DIDDY jumped on a private jet after his appearance at the Met Gala and his star-studded after-party at The Box. The rapper then headed to Florida to host a kickoff event for the Formula 1 Grand Prix at Joey Morrissey's club M2 on Thursday. We hear that, en route, Diddy (above) made videos hyping the party on his jet and once he arrived at the club was drinking DeLeón Tequila in celebration of Cinco de Mayo. DJ Whoo Kid and DJ Spade — a fave of Drake — were playing Diddy's hits all night. A spy said that "Megan Thee Stallion's boyfriend, the artist Pardison Fontaine, was buying bottles of Champagne on the stage waiting for her arrival, but the sexy singer ended up staying at the studio, recording new music."

Rocker goes pop for Swift

ROCKER Matty Healy — who's alleged to be dating pop star Taylor Swift — was seen in the VIP tent at Swift's concert Friday night in Nashville amid all the heated rumors. The 1975 frontman was in a flannel shirt over a black tee as he watched the "Anti-Hero" singer take the stage in front of a sold-out crowd at Nissan Stadium during her Eras Tour. Sources previously told The Sun that Healy was planning on attending Swift's Nashville show when the outlet broke the news that the two are an item. "Both Matty and Taylor have been touring over the past few weeks, so it's been a lot of FaceTiming and texting, but she cannot wait to see him again," The Sun's source claimed. Healy even jetted in from the Philippines — where he'd played two shows with his band — to attend Friday's Swift gig. Fans (possibly with too much time on their hands) also thought Healy hinted he's dating Swift by singing one of his band's songs called "She's American" at their Manila concert. Last month, Swift and longtime actor-beau Joe Alwyn broke up after six years of dating. Swift and Healy have not directly publicly acknowledged the dating rumors. Stay tuned.

Follow us on Twitter
@Page Six